<sup>4</sup> Omitted from the elements are the terms “every person” or “any person” unless the statute modifies or expands on this element. The definition of “person” includes “natural persons” and “corporations.” (Penal Code § 7.)

<sup>5</sup> The term “another,” contemplates impersonation of real, actual, or even deceased as opposed to fictitious, person. (Lee v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal.4th 41.)

<sup>6</sup> “Does any act” requires an additional act of false personation that exposes the victim to criminal liability beyond a false statement of identification (See People v. Chardon (1999) 77 Cal.App.4th 205, 211 [after falsely identifying herself defendant committed the additional act of signing her sister’s name to the citation’s promise to appear].)

<sup>7</sup> No requirement exists that defendant must have specific intent to cause described liability or benefit. (People v. Rathert (2000) 24 Cal.4th 200.)

<sup>8</sup> For purposes of Penal Code § 530.5 a “person” includes “a natural person, living or deceased, firm, association, organization, partnership, business trust, company, corporation, limited liability company, or public entity or any other legal entity.” (Pen. Code, § 530.55 (a).)

<sup>11</sup> Crime of possession of access card account information with a fraudulent intent does not require that the information actually be used or that the account of an innocent consumer actually be charged or billed. (People v. Molina (2004) 120 Cal.App.4th 507.)

<sup>12</sup> Consecutive sentencing is permissible for the offenses of receiving stolen property (Pen. Code, § 496) and acquiring credit cards to be used illegally (Pen. Code, § 484e) where defendant kept stolen credit cards over an extended period of time with the intent to use them. (People v. Rowland (1971) 21 Cal.App.3d 371.)

<sup>13</sup> Two cloned cellular phones possessed by defendant were considered separate violations of the statute. (People v. Butler, supra, 43 Cal.App.4th 1224.)

<sup>14</sup> The term validly issued to another does not require that card be currently valid and is merely descriptive of the kinds of cards coming within the definition, which may include expired or cancelled cards. (People v. Molina (2004) 120 Cal.App.4th 507.)

<sup>15</sup> Charging Pen. Code, § 484e (b) will only allows a single conviction for a defendant even though there are separate victims. (See People v. Shabtay (2006) 138 Cal.App.4th 1184.)
